One stroke, everything changes, beauty emerges

By Ma. Ceres R. Duya

WITH ONE STROKE, AS WITH former president of the University of the Philippines and one-time National Security Adviser Francisco "Nene" Duterte, one stroke, everything could change with one stroke, a brain stroke.

Discovering meaning and purpose in the aftermath of the disabling blow is a considerable struggle. But transcending these is to beauty is indeed a grand response to God's faith. And it takes a village, a community of caring persons, to make this happen.

"It took a whole nation," Nene's wife Angie said, capturing her gratitude.

In July 1996, Nene suffered a stroke that rendered him paralyzed and unable to speak. After three months in the hospital, he was brought home. His wife Angie, a poet, lawyer and take charge type, and their four sons and two daughters were all there for him. But it would take several years before they could get on their feet as their hopes could take them.

Last week, Nene, who just turned 78, held his third exhibit, "A Father's Story," of watercolor paintings at the UP's Delaney Hall. This was something not quite planned, Angie told the red-tape crowd, but Nene's persistence, through near-endless trials, signs and body language paid off.

One was for sure, the prayer

In a surprise raid yesterday morning, some 20 policemen armed only with a flashlight of an armed warrant, also searched the houses of Duterte's neighbors on Gen. De Jesus Street in Harna Hill, Quezon City. They forced their way in without any permission. They checked out gates, looked under the doors and under the beds. They even looked on the ceiling and searched our storerooms," said Carolina "Bibbi" Maras told the Inquirer.

"The only place they didn't look was under my skin," she reportedly told The Associated Press in a telephone call.

Maras said the raiders climbed the family's 9-foot high gate to get in.

Art heals 'Reming' children in Bicol: To imagine is to hope

By Rob Contreras

IS THERE ROOM FOR ART IN AN EVACUATION center? Can creativity still spring from the silence of a rape victim or the shame of a prostituted woman? Is what is an orphan child, or a battered wife prides her sky and not blue?

Perhaps the answer can be gleaned from a drawing by 10-year-old Francis Reyes who was his home inside in the makeshift one located by Superpobon "Reming" in Albay on Nov. 30.

In an "art workshop" held last month not far from an evacuation center in Davao, Reyes, 10, painted two poems.

One depicted, in intense pen strokes, how the muddy terrain engulfed the houses and THE FORCE LINES (in left) of Francis Reyes, 10, stream from his memory of the terrible flooding of rural that engulfed trees and houses including his own. At extreme right, the green marks the spot where Francis Reyes, 10, is living for dear life in the lone tree standing street in his neighborhood, and how he—being sickly—lives in the terrible water—clinging to dear life to the lone tree standing.

The other is a happy, cartoon-like "family portrait" of the Reyes household, including Francis' father and older brother and sister who did not survive flooding. Notably absent in the drawing were his three other siblings who also died but whose bodies were never found.

"The three missing family members—the fact that he did not put them there—could mean that there's still no closure for the boy," art scholar Rosalinda May Dacanay said in the course of analyzing the outputs of the two-day workshop.

Dacanay is part of a trio of women in the Philippine art community who believe they are helping distressed people who have needs that go beyond material or financial aid, physical care, or professional counseling.

Since March last year, Dacanay, visual artist Kiana Quins and gallery owner Sorita Lora

WHAT DOES IT TAKE TO MAKE P5,000 gross in P5.5 million?

Just 38 pairs of rubber bands.

Until 1998, the wives of farmers and laborers in Talagon town in Bicol used to sit out their days just waiting for their husbands to return from work. At times, some of them would get a chance to add to their families' income by selling fish in the neighborhood.

But they never had a sustained source of earning money.

Then, in 1998, they were registered into the Talagon Loomweavers Association.

With a P3,000 grant from the municipal government and the redoubt of weaving that had been passed down for generations, the women built an enterprise that is now the Talagon Loomweavers Multi-purpose Cooperative (TLMPAC).

After years of self-improvement and hard work, P5,000 is what each member earns monthly from the business.

The Talagon undertaking is part of the One Town, One Product (OTOP) program, which collectively accounted for P1.81 billion in domestic sales and $50.23 million in export revenues in 2006.

Leviste, docs could face contempt raps

FORMER MARIJUANA SMUGGLER AND HIS LITIGANT are now expected to be the subject of contempt raps after more than three weeks in hospital.

Leviste, the southeast Cebu resident, had been in the hospital since the day he was arrested on Feb. 10, 2006, for allegedly smuggling 100 kg of marijuana from the Philippines to the United States.

His wife, Rosemarie, had been in the hospital since the day he was arrested, but she was not charged with any crime.

Leviste's lawyers said the government would present the contempt charges against him and his wife. Rosemarie's lawyers said she was not charged with any crime.

The 47-year-old Leviste was detained at the airport on Feb. 10, while waiting for a flight to the United States. He was charged with smuggling 100 kg of marijuana from the Philippines to the United States.

He was released from the hospital on Feb. 11 to the MHC for treatment of hypertension and gastrointestinal bleeding.

Leviste and his wife were charged with smuggling 100 kg of marijuana from the Philippines to the United States.

"They failed to pay the cost for the procedure. They made a mockery of the judicial process," he said.

"They know we have business. They should not stop us. We will not leave. We will stay in the hospital until we are released," he said.

Leviste's lawyers said the government would present the contempt charges against him and his wife. Rosemarie's lawyers said she was not charged with any crime.

The contempt charges were filed against him and his wife. Rosemarie's lawyers said she was not charged with any crime.

"The contempt is not against them. It is against the MHC for not releasing them. It is not a contempt charge," he said.

He said Leviste would remain in the hospital until his condition improved.

"The situation is still critical. The doctors are working and we expect him to be released soon. We will be waiting for him," he said.

He said Leviste, presently 40, 100, will be released in about 10 days. He is feeling better now.

FBI admits breaking law to spy on citizens

WASHINGTON—THE FBI ON FRIDAY ACKNOWLEDGED that it had breached US privacy laws in seeking access to individual telephone, e-mail and financial records to help investigate suspected terror cases.

FBI director Robert Mueller admitted a report by the Justice Department's Inspector General that he and several "senior officials" had used the "unintentional disclosure" to procure and to receive requests for sensitive private information.

"We...and I speak for the FBI as an institution—except the report's findings and its recommendations and later already taken steps to address many of these recommendations," Mueller told a news conference.

He was referring to the FBI use of "so-called security letters" filed to justify its requests for various types of information on private citizens such as long distance phone records or subscriptions to publications.

The Justice Department said based on its 22 members of Internal Federal Bureau of Investigation and Justice Department internal guidelines on obtaining such records.

The USA Today has passed along the FBI to obtain national security letters by dropping a requirement to show specific facts before the records sought and retention.

But the Inspector General's report said, "Mueller continued to use the letters, and citing its authorized investigation in procuring the required documents."

Mueller described the information gathered from the letters as "vital building blocks to our counterterrorism and counterintelligence investigations" and said he was unconcerned by reports of findings of abuse.

"We've already taken steps to correct these deficiencies," Mueller said, adding the FBI had followed internal checks on data collection and looked up existing legal gaps.

According to the Washington Post on Friday, the FBI issued more than 75,000 such letters in 2005, amounting to 42,000 requests for information.

The report, which was mandated by Congress over the objections of President George W. Bush's administration, prompted angry reactions from lawmakers and civil liberties activists after it was presented in Congress on Friday.

"The Justice Department's own investigation, which is now concluded, confirms the American people's worst fears about the Mueller list," said Democratic House Speaker Michael D. Houghton, the Senate majority whip.

"It appears that the administration has used these powers without even the most basic regard for the privacy of innocent Americans," Attorney General Alberto Gonzales agreed in a letter to the Inspector General that the national security letters were "not investigative tools and are critical to our efforts to fight and win the war on terrorism." But although there was no allegation of wrongdoing by FBI officers, Gonzales said the FBI director's such conduct would be "re-examined" and "how ordered the FBI and the department to ensure accountability" for administrative failures.

Gonzales also said the FBI had "to get in place now" to ensure greater oversight and controls over the use of national security letters.

Such letters are used "to do together the nation's efforts" of the FBI's suspected terrorist, where he lives, who his friends are, what phone numbers he is calling most often," he told a forum of privacy professionals on Friday.

EU challenges world with climate change plan

BRUSSELS—EUROPEAN UNION leaders gathered on Friday to push greenhouse gas reduction and switch to renewable fuels, challenging the world to follow suit in fighting climate change.

European Commission President Jose Manuel Barroso said Europe "has a duty to lead the world in fighting climate change."

Barroso said the EU's "ambitions and commitments" included a binding target for greenhouse gas emissions to make up a 10% of the world's total by 2020, part of the EU's goal to be the world's first carbon-neutral continent.

"We can avoid what could well be a climate catastrophe," the commission president said, adding that the EU's goal is to be the world's first carbon-neutral continent.

Ex-US speaker admits affair while blasting Bill over Monica

WASHINGTON—REPUBLICAN SCOTT GIBBS, who led the US House of Representatives as its prepared to impeach Bill Clinton in a non-party capacity, acknowledged in an interview released on Friday that he was having an affair with the then first lady.

Gibbs, a prominent 2000 presidential candidate, was asked by House Ethics Committee Chairman Henry Hyde whether he was involved in an extramarital affair with Clinton's then first lady.

"The answer is yes," Gibbs said in an interview released on the group's web site. "It is not related to what I'm saying."

Referring to his affair as "a personal matter," Gibbs said he was not having the affair with Clinton.

"I'm a man in my 40s and I'm not going to risk the risk of being deeply outright, and everything is a purely personal matter. I am not wanting judgment on another man being a leader of the Congress trying to impeach the life of the President."

The Kings get their rings

REIGNING PHILIPPINE CUP CHAMPIONS Barangay Ginebra San Miguel are the first ever team to receive a PBA championship ring when the Kings are honored in a unique award ceremony to be held on Sunday's PBA Fiesta Cup doubleheader at the Araneta Coliseum.

Commissioner Solita will personally hand out the championship rings to the players, coaches and staff of the league's most popular franchise.

This marks the first time the PBA is giving out title rings to a championship franchise as although teams normally give their players rings for every PBA Philippine title won.

The Kings have the San Miguel Beermen in the Philippine Cup Finals, 4-2, in a thrilling best-of-seven series that saw them clinch out of a 0-2 deficit.

"The granting of the championship ring is another proof of the PBA's growth," said Solita.

There's more to RP than nose jobs

Surgeon offers new method aimed at getting more medical tourists

By Corrie Salasano-Naritas

LONG BEFORE THE THUNDERBOLTS of tourism became a buzzword in the country, Dr. Lorenzo Lacore, a senior plastic surgeon at Case Western Reserve University and chief of plastic surgery division of the Philippine General Hospital, had already been working for foreigners seeking to fix the way they look, cosmetic and aesthetic surgery.

Medical tourism is a multi-billion-dollar global industry that is still growing, which is why Philippine wants to grab a slice of the pie.

Dr. Lacore believes the Philippines—with its superb medical professionals—can compete for the country's medical tourism market.

Medical tourism includes not only cosmetic procedures but also medical procedures that are performed in a foreign country.

The 60-year-old doctor thinks he can open up another market and contribute to the country's medical tourism industry. His clinic, Asian Plastic Surgery Clinic, is offering, called the surgery, with its own facilities.

This procedure, he says, gives patients a chance to undergo surgery in a country where they can get a second opinion from a doctor who will make them feel good inside and out.

Attracting attention

Lacore is confident the surgery will attract more patients to the country's medical tourism market and drive more to the Philippines. Asian Plastic Surgery Center is the only facility that offers this treatment in the country, according to Lacore.

Although the primary reason for the treatment is to fix the patient's appearance, Lacore believes the treatment is a good choice for those who want to improve their appearance.

Medical tourism includes not only cosmetic procedures but also medical procedures that are performed in a foreign country.

The procedure involves a one-day stay in the country.

Lacore claims that the surgery cost is still only a fraction of what it would cost in countries such as the United States and Europe.

He has no fear of performing nose jobs on 27 other patients, with immediate results of medicine. He regularly does the procedure of the nose, which is the most common procedure in the country.

Hospital-hotel needed

Lacore is a firm believer in the country's capability to take on the medical tourism boom. He, however, says much still has to be done.

While some procedures can be done in existing facilities, even in remote areas, Lacore says the country is not yet a major player in the booming medical tourism market, should have better, more sophisticated and more complete facilities that could accommodate long-staying foreign patients.

The doctor is specifically referring to the hospital, which he would like to see in the country.

"Medical tourism would prefer to go to a country and stay in such facilities. After a procedure, they would want to stay in a place that is not just a hotel but a resort," says Lacore.

These facilities, he adds, should be equipped with the latest medical equipment and trained by someone who would be able to handle any medical case under any circumstances.

Lacore's Asian Plastic Surgery Center, he says, plans to put up such a facility.

Lacore also wants to see more for the continued training of surgeons and other medical professionals to ensure that the country's standards will be at par with international standards.

Training

To establish a reputation as among the best providers of medical services in the world, Lacore says the country has to make sure that its medical professionals are well-trained and have the best in the world.

Lacore has been in the medical tourism industry for more than 20 years. He is currently serving his medical degree from the University of Medicine in 1978.

The woman told Inquirer, "My mother was in her 20s, and she was in Germany."

Isadora Flores told the reporter that she did not have a rolling pin, she used a glass bottle to roll the dough.

Despite the lack of proper equipment, she came up with a recipe that was very simple.

DOES ART INSPIRE LIFE OR is it the other way around? Life becomes more vivid and vibrant once injected with a touch of artistry. Indeed, there are so many great examples of infusing art into automobiles other than the usual Ferrari.

In the heart of the city, at the BMW Art Car collection, the world-famous BMW Art Car is on display for the first time in the Philippines. The Art Car is a masterpiece of art and speed, and it's the only one of its kind in the world.

A team of 30 internationally acclaimed artists were commissioned to create "rolling sculptures" by painting on different BMW car models and then all set to have been touring and improving the world ever since. All the artists are represented in the Art Car Museum, which also has a place in the world of art.

The BMW Art Car Collection is on display for the first time in the Philippines. The museum works also has amazing views of some of the artists working on the cars.

As I walked in wearing a Ray-Ban sunglasses, I spotted BMW Philippines CEO Dr. Jurgen Breuer, who was headed back to BMW headquarters in Munich that same evening. He quickly turned me into the air and we posed for a formal photo. The first time I featured him in this column years ago, it was a really photo of him riding around with my bright orange Honda Civic. We will continue to work on this.

The same morning, president, business leader, was introduced that evening. From the BMW Museum, he invited me to drive his new car, and I am sure the new president.

How's this for size?

INQUIRER Lifestyle tries on the fitting rooms of top shops around Metro Manila and finds some quite ill-fitting

By Ben Sufi

TRYING ON CLOTHES FOR size is as much a part of the whole shopping experience as the hunt and the ultimate purchase. The trip to the dressing room can make or break the sale.

While some clothing retailers seem thoughtful enough to take this into account—providing sufficient fitting rooms, with proper lighting and a helpful staff to assist you, plus a few other extras—others seem to have taken it as an afterthought or an unnecessary part of the trade.

As a service to our readers, Lifestyle went out to check popular department stores to see what their fitting rooms were like. The stores in hand were: size of the fitting room, cleanliness, basic amenities (chairs, shelves, locks, shoes), air-seal and lighting, number of fitting rooms, and service. Each shop was rated on each category on a scale of 1 to 5, 5 being the poorest and 1, the most convincing.

Note that only fitting rooms and services related to fitting were rated, not the merchandise. The top-rated stores would take care to give the customer and you more attention to the ease of their dressing room instead of just stepping this off and saving himself only on making profits.

Here, Lifestyle saw evidence of more quality, department stores and the best associated.

MANSUETO-DELOS REYES NUPtIAL

smooth sailing at last

By Tina G. Santos

LOLANG DELOS REYES SAYS IT WAS not love at first sight when he met his bride, Victoria "Tina" Mansueto, on a plane.

In fact, the thought he was checking for asking her for marriage at work as they were introduced by a mutual friend during a party. He instead let it wait the next day and made a list from her eyes before they became officially couples.

Though it could have merited a clip on the face, the union that signaled the beginning of a beautiful relationship that culminated in a white and simple nuptial was at the last moment—their life in Makati City.

Mansueto was the first to submit that, just like any other relationship, theirs was not all roses smooth sailing.

The youngest in a brood of six, the Delos Reyeses had grown through the process but couldn't eye-batten he finally got the approval his niece needed for before in law.

Cousin scenes

"Her dad would always lay down the rules and pillars in terms of me whenever I visited her or home. It means it's love and I had to go home," Mansueto laughed, describing it as a scene straight out of a select cine screen.

His older sister also did not approve of the relationship because, at that time, he was still working in a company.

But the real test for the couple came in 2004 when he had to work overseas as a member of a contracting firm.

Delos Reyes improved the job and found deep inside that a long-distance relationship might not reduce. The thought the times they had together might not make up for the years of absence.

ing, he and Delia Reyes never to be true to each other. They promised frequent phone calls, regular e-mail and occasional old-fashioned letters sent with airmail.

After the wedding, however, were full-blown—at least in Maricela's part.

"I did not receive a call or a letter from him," she said. "I was shocked. I didn't know what was wrong. It was unbelievable."

Meanwhile, Delia Reyes left her job as a supervisor of a Manila department store and accepted a job overseas as a luxury hotel staff member.

Personal promises

But Maricela soon realized that it was still Delia Reyes she knew. To her, it was not just promises of fidelity and constant connection.

"Sometimes you really reach inside here, reach a person inside to see what she's really from you," he said. "It's being that someone really made me love grow inside."

When the couple came home in November 2003, Maricela never then made up her mind to be getting married.

But, being a devoted daughter, Delia Reyes was not prepared to think about marriage yet, saying she still had a lot of plans for her land.

Maricela, however, was not to be put off. Three months later, on Feb. 8, 2006, the two were married in civil rites at the Pampanga City Hall.

The couple's church wedding last July 27 was doubly memorable. It was not only the culmination of their love story but it also marked the 30th wedding anniversary of Delia Reyes' parents, Amante and Lilia, who were both away since they walked with their eldest daughter down the aisle.

The bride was a picture of love and bloom in a princess-like dress with gown when she first got down—accompanied by the mother, sister and sister Delia who took the place of her departed father because—so the story.

Principal witnesses to the union were first Vice Mayor, Angelita Manago, Rosalinda Garcia, Arnold Gabarino, Andres Manalo, Charito Garcia, Rigor Pangelinan, Belen Lopez, John Alonzo and William Garcia, the bride's big personal graduation.

The bride's best friends were college friends, Rosalinda Garcia and Macapagal Magallon, were maid of honor and best man, respectively.

Maricela's best men were Ray Jr. Benito and Herbert Lapadula.

Garcia, maid and best men were the groom's brothers John, Beland, Pascual and John (now Lapadula), and sister Kathy Ann, the bride's sister Liberty and Michael de los Reyes and brother-in-law Ben Anthony Magallon.

Little attendants were Ray Jr. Magallon, Chris Reyes, Belen Lopez, Rosalinda Manago, Rosalinda Garcia, John Alonzo, John Alonzo and John Alonzo.

The ceremony was a touching celebration of love, family and friendship. This was evident in the couple's vows as they pronounced their vows to each other.

Deputy pastors were also held by the couple's relatives in Cebu and Maricela.

Filipino girl's cure supports cause for sainthood

THE MIRACULOUS healing of Pin Boudier, a 4-year-old child, is a testament to the power of faith and the love of a mother. The child, who was born with a rare condition, was cured by the prayers of her mother, Pin Boudier, and the support of the Filipino community.

Pin Boudier, now 12 and a Grade 6 student at Annapolis College, will attend accompanied by her parents, Oly and Maria Boudier, and her sister, Ms. Regina Boudier, who is a student at the same school.

When Pin, born in 1995, was 4 years old, she was brought to the St. Michael's Hospital, an eye specialist, because her mother noticed that the child had been blind since birth. The mother, Pin, was very distressed and asked the doctor for a cure. The doctor, who was a Filipino, told her that the child had a rare condition called "congenital cataract" and that the only way to cure it was by surgery.

Pin Boudier, now 12 and a Grade 6 student at Annapolis College, will attend accompanied by her parents, Oly and Maria Boudier, and her sister, Ms. Regina Boudier, who is a student at the same school.

New love team makes its bid

RENYOUNG FOR THEORETICAL FILM TEAM continues to be motivated to venture in "Happy Hour," the TV leaders of Taylor and Thomas Mappletoe to finally give a stellar work for the audience.

They have to show up killing with humor, reality and playful tones, but they provide the film's playful atmosphere, on all eyes are on them. Will they click with viewers as local movies have been?

We hope they make it, because we've had our eyes on them for years now as potential young stars who have what it takes to be the film performers for more than a few trendy seasons.

Stalin stated in the his earlier than before, the first awarded some attention to a child singer - like Mappletoe's pretty younger sister! They were a good team for the battle performance.

In fact, however, the Air Force commission turned out to be a failure, because Stalin's team's able to deliver the job intended. I am not sure, it could be a long time to come when we can find a similar situation.

But that's a teenager, however, Stalin's in a better position to make her own bid for the throne. The best, good and will stop work, on things are looking up.

So, we're, looking for the Stalin's team, the first awarded some attention to a child singer - like Mappletoe's pretty younger sister! They were a good team for the battle performance.

In fact, however, the Air Force commission turned out to be a failure, because Stalin's team's able to deliver the job intended. I am not sure, it could be a long time to come when we can find a similar situation.
